BIG BUM JUMBLE

ABOUT THE BIG BUM JUMBLE

The Big Bum Jumble is landmark fatshion event selling low-cost second-hand and vintage clothes in sizes XL+. It will take place on 14 August 2010 in London's East End, and will comprise a traditional jumble sale, a catwalk show, live DJs and other activities, as well as the chance to participate in a film of the event.

Fashion can be creative and playful, it can help you feel really good about yourself. This should be available to everyone regardless of size or background. The situation is improving but, unless you can afford the high-end stuff, plus-sized fashion is often limited to poor quality, over-priced and ethically-dubious products sold by companies who see fat people as self-hating, desperate consumers. We deserve better.

Although The Big Bum Jumble is a sale, it's also anti-consumerist, all about reusing and recycling, and has a DIY-culture ethic of making something out of the resources available. The Big Bum Jumble is a fundraiser for further fat activist community events in the UK, including the proposed 2012 Fattylympics.

DONATE YOUR CLOTHES

The Big Bum Jumble is looking for clean, useable, plus-sized garments - women's clothes 18+, men's clothes XL+. You can bring donations on the day, or donate in advance - contact the organisers at: bigbumjumble@gmail.com to arrange a pick-up.
